

Monoprints

This series of artworks is made with the techniques and materials of screen print monoprinting. This technique takes advantage of an image on a screen, but allows the artist to add inks for each individual print so that each print is unique and different from every other print in the series. This technique bridges the difference between painting and printmaking.